The Mahone lots contains 213,000 square feet, is a mile from the capitol, or two miles by the traveled route, and is largely composed of made earth, having long been a resort of dumping ground. The price, 2550,000, amounts to $1.17 per square feet. Another site much nearer the capitol was offered at eights cents a square foot. The death rate around this lot is about six times as great as that sevendence it is other.

as great as that around one of the other lots mentioned.

The interesting feature of the debate was the reasons assigned why only the Mahone lot could be purchased. Mr.

Milliken said that there had been about it." He went on to say that the object of insisting on the Mahone lot was to pay somebody's old debts, and farther on said that the senators were seeking to pay personal dobts by taking the money out of the treasury. "Among them all, I rejoice especially at West Virginia. She differs not at all in her interest as nature made her from Pennsylvania. She has the same moun Pennsylvania. She has the same moun-tains filled with ore, the same valleys rich in soil, the same rivers running to the sea; she is Pennsylvania's twin sis-ter, born to the same fate, wedded to the same interest, preordained to the same sublime destiny. She belongs to the Republican party by the eternal fit-ness of things. Born of the thoresof civil war, she was cradled in the clouds of a conflict for liberty, and, while her birth gave to the nation a new state and to the flag a new star, her birthlight was a place in the sisterhood of Republican states. For years sho was dealed that birthright, but now, at last, we welcome her through struggle to that which is her own. Henceforth her place in the national councils will be filled not by college professors, impracticable free trade theorists, but by men who will stand for the protection needed for the coal in her mines, the lumber on her streams, and the wool husbandry of her hills. Hereafter she will expect report to be made by her representatives to her own hardy sons and not to Eng-forable, but some insisted it was that or nothing; that the present office is unsafe, and that it is important that a change be made as speedily as possible. The reason given why, it was impossible to select any other site was that the senate would not permit any bill to become a law unless it provided for this specific site. The, matter has been occupying attention for five or six years, and the senate committee, though not favoring the site themselves, told the house committee that this was the only site to which the senators would assent.
